DEVOTED TO THE INTERESTS OF WASHINGTON COUNTY

VOLUME II.

SPRINGFIELD, KY., WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 14, 1906.

NUMBER 50

PROMINENT

Of Texas Vicinity Passed to His Reward Last Friday.

Mr. P. C. W. Peterson, died at his home at Texas, this county, last Friday, Nov. 9, of paralysis. He had been in declining health for several months, and his death had been expected for several days. The deceased was seventy-one years old and was born in Denmark. He came to America with his parents when a child, settling first in Wisconsin, but at the close of the Civil War he came to Kentucky to live, and shortly after located in Washington county, where he had resided continually ever since. Mr. Peterson leaves a wife and five children, most of whom are well known citizens of this county. To the surviving ones hundreds extend condolence. The deceased was a member of the Lutheran church, and was an excellent Christian gentleman. He had been engaged in the mercantile business at Texas for many years, and by his absolute honesty in dealing with the people, had won their esteem. Indeed, through his death, the community loses an honest and honorable citizen—one who was a blessing to his community. Funeral services were conducted at Bethlehem church Sunday.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

An interesting meeting of the Literary and Debating Society was held last Friday. Aside from the storm of forensic ability that crowded the latter hours, there were five enjoyable musical numbers. Miss Virginia Royalty sang "In After Years When I Am Old." Miss Ethel Seary rendered a selection on the piano and later a duet was played by Miss Jennie Craycroft and Miss Cecelia Simms. A mandolin quartet, consisting of Misses Anna Cox, Mabel Tucker, Louise Clayton and Sue W. Ray, played "The Lullaby by Hummel." The last musical number was a guitar quartet consisting of Profs. Hume and Thompson and Misses Numan and Ray. They played the "Mayflower Waltz" and "Gracful Masurka."

The debate was on the question: "Resolved that Jefferson was a greater statesman than Hamilton." The decision was given to the negative.

Next Friday there will be recitations exclusively.

Miss Ray's mandolin and guitar class is making excellent progress. They are all playing at least a little and a few of them are becoming good mandolinists and guitarists. They will give several numbers Christmas.

Some of our boys are becoming anxious for the big day to go out of effect, and in a few days we shall expect to see several of them armed with gun and dog. Of course they will not go except on Saturdays.

L. D. Walker has been ill for several days. We trust he will not be out long.

The second quarter began last week and the students will not be examined again till Christmas. However, every day counts and perhaps no place is it shown more clearly than in school that.

The moving finger writes and having writ Moves on, nor all our piety nor wit Shall lure it back to cancel and a line Nor all our tears wipe out a line of it.

Misses McClure and Royalty joined the teaching profession last week, leaving the absence from school of Prof. Thompson. It is related that they make excellent pedagogues and one of the young gentlemen under their tuition says he doesn't care how often said Professor takes sick.

Death of Mr. Logsdon.

Mr. John Logsdon died at his home, near Hardin's Chapel Tuesday, Nov. 11. He had been in ill health for several months and his death was not unexpected. Deceased was fifty years of age, and was liked by all of his acquaintances. He leaves a wife and several children, the oldest of whom are grown. Mr. Logsdon married a daughter of Mr. Marion Sweeney, of Mackville. To the wife and children many friends extend condolence. Interment occurred at Bethlehem to-day at 11 o'clock.

WANTS NO MORE GLORY

President Roosevelt Will Not Become a Candidate For Re-Election.

New York, Nov. 11.—A Washington special to the New York World says: President Roosevelt is being entirely eliminated from the national contest two years hence by his intimate friends here. It is declared that just prior to his departure for Panama he repeated his firm determination not to be a candidate for re-election. Mr. Roosevelt's emphatic declaration of another term was made during an important political conference at the White House. He did not mince words, but made it plain and unequivocal that no combination of circumstances could induce him to become a candidate for re-election in 1908.

Several prominent public men were present, having called to spend the evening, and the President's declaration came while they were discussing the next Republican nominee. One of the visitors had alluded to the frequent suggestions that Mr. Roosevelt would be the logical man to head the ticket year after next, and that elicited from him a candid statement concerning his own sentiments on the subject.

The President said that while he appreciated the compliment implied in the proposal that he be a candidate to succeed himself, and realized that it was made in good spirit, his decision to recede at the conclusion of his present term was irrevocable. He thoroughly subscribed to the time-honored tradition that the President of the United States should not serve more than two terms and, as he has said before, he regarded this as his second term.

Moreover, insofar as fame was concerned, he was certain he could achieve no more than he has already acquired and there was the chance that the popular esteem he now enjoyed might reach the vanishing point, as happened in the case of President Cleveland before he concluded his second term. The President stated, furthermore, that he was not so possessed of self-esteem as to believe the policies he has been pursuing could not be carried out by his logical successor, by his successor, wherever he may be.

Local Option Fights Ahead.

The Rev. C. L. Collins, District Superintendent of the Kentucky Anti-Saloon League, in an interview with The Sun, states that the following counties will hold local option elections early in December: viz: Whitley, Ballard, Todd, Logan, Scott, Clay, Wolfe, Pulaski, Metcalfe, Lee, Pendleton and Greenup—twelve in all. In Falmouth, Middleboro and Greenup (city) separate city elections will be held.

As to the constitutionality of the County Unit Law, Mr. Collins says he expects the Court of Appeals to hand down its decision before the close of the present year. The liquor forces of the state have arranged to have their fight of the case presented to the court; but the Anti-Saloon League will have the best legal counsel obtainable and consequently expect a favorable decision by the court. The League's hope for such a decision is based partly on the fact that very similar laws have been upheld in several other states.

Postmaster Robbed

C. W. Foster, Postmaster at Riverton, Ia., nearly lost his life and was robbed at all points, according to his letter, which says: "For 20 years I had chronic liver trouble, which led to such a severe case of jaundice that even my finger-nails turned yellow; when my doctor prescribed Electric Bitters, which cured me and have kept me well for eleven years." Sure cure for Biliousness, Nerves, Weakness and All Stomach, Liver, Kidney and Bladder derangements. A wonderful Tonic. At C. J. Haydon's Drug store. 50 cents.

...FARMERS...

On next County Court day Mr. Sherman, National Organizer of the American Society of Equity, will address the farmers of Washington county in the Court House at Springfield. Farmers from every section of the county should attend this meeting. His address will be full of interest. Speaking at 1 o'clock.

Advice to Hog-Raisers.

Editor Sun—Give me space in your paper for a little "hog talk" with our farmers.

At a time like the present, when the hog is about the most profitable thing a farmer can turn his attention to, it is a good time for him to give a little thought to the kind he has, and see if he is giving them the same show he does his other stock in their breeding. A good breed of hogs is necessary to successful hog raising. Don't you think, Mr. farmer, blood will tell in the hog, as well as in any other kind of stock? If so, select the breed of hogs you prefer of all the standard varieties.

The little extra price paid is comparatively nothing per head on the pigs, and you will find a great improvement in your drove of stock hogs, and they will fatten better and cheaper. I heard a neighbor a few days ago say, "The corn pen is the best peddle, too." In the corn pen is a factor, but the smaller the pen the greater need for the thoroughbred. Now is a good time for a man to start in and improve his stock of hogs. Let him lay his foundation for his herd with the best he can get. There is no economy in starting with anything but the best. Get registered stock, or eligible to registry. Buy them when young in pairs or trios of no skin, and they will not cost much—any at two or three months old. Then save some of the best sow pigs, and change the sire when necessary, and in a year or so he will see how much better he is off than if he had dragged along in the same old way. If you don't want to go into it that far, by all means, get a pure blooded boar, and select your sows with care, ones that are prolific and ones that will make good mothers, and then bear in mind the man behind the sow has a good deal to do in shaping the nature of these sows. If you are nervous and irritable, and fight your sows they will more or less contract the same fault, and an irritable vicious sow makes a good mother. If you have a sow that only has five or six pigs at a farrow, fatten her, and get rid of her; there are plenty that will have nine or ten.

I breed twice a year—about December 1st and June 1st—to have early spring and early fall pigs. The farmer in selecting his breed should remember that the hog for him to handle is the "quick money hog." The kind that develop early, mature and fatten young.

I make 100 pound stockers in four months and tops in six, and never have a very large corn pen either. Take more interest in pushing the pig along and they will return it by pushing you along. Right here, let me say that a man who takes no interest in a hog, and does not like to handle them, had better sell out to some one that does.

Marion Items.

Falcons: Mr. Paul L. McElroy, age 84, died of heart failure after an illness of only two days at his home two miles from Lebanon on the St. Rose pike, Saturday morning, Nov. 3, 1906. The funeral took place at the Second Presbyterian church, at this city, at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Rev. A. S. Moffett conducting the services, and interment was in Ryder cemetery.

The curfew bell now rings at 10 o'clock and will continue until Spring. During the long winter evenings the best places for boys are at their own homes instead of loafing about the stores and streets, and if properly heeded, this law will prove of much benefit to the characters of the young men of a few years hence.

Mr. Harvey McCawley was found by workmen, Tuesday morning, by the side of the L. & N. near South Louisville, with his head lying in red corn broken. He was taken to the hospital where he died later and his remains were brought to Raywick for interment yesterday. The deceased's parents live at Raywick where he had been on a visit, and before 11:30 a. m. the train Monday, he was unable to tell what had happened to him and it is the supposition that he fell from the train as he went into Louisville and remained there all night.

Gov. Beckham.

Elizabethtown News: Governor Beckham is undoubtedly the most remarkable politician Kentucky has produced in the last quarter of a century. He was able to sit in his seat and take up Judge Paynter, who is practically unknown in the State, and who could not by his own influence secure a dozen votes in the Legislature, and elect him to the U. S. Senate over J. C. S. Blackburn, the most popular and conspicuous Democrat in the State. Last Tuesday he defeated Senator Blackburn's colleague, Senator McCreary, against whose record or character nothing could be said, by a handsome majority. Such victories as these have never heretofore been won by any man in Kentucky. We did all we could against Gov. Beckham in both these races, not from any selfish standpoint, nor because we had any axe to grind, but because we thought the best interest of the party was in Blackburn and McCreary and not in Paynter and Beckham. We have not changed our opinion about this matter because the candidates we advocated are defeated, but our opposition to Governor Beckham has not blinded us to the fact that he is the most remarkable politician in Kentucky and that he is undoubtedly the idol of the party. The News accepts the whole Democratic ticket nominated in the primary last Saturday as its ticket and will support it with the same loyalty as it would, had it been composed of those whose nomination we favored. The ticket is composed of Democrats who were their nominations, and it is now becoming in all Democrats to stand for it and elect it, and it is the endeavor of the News to do its full share.

STOCK LAW

People in Districts Carried For The Stock Law Should Read and Understand.

In view of the fact that at the recent election in this county three precincts voted for a stock law, we print below that part of the law with which the people in these districts should acquaint themselves:

"But if a majority of those voting upon this question shall vote against the running at large of cattle, or the species thereof named in the petition, then it shall be unlawful, after thirty days from and election, for any person to permit any cattle, or the species thereof named in the petition, owned by or under his control or in his custody, to run at large in said district, districts, or county, as the case may be; and any person so offending shall be fined not less than five nor more than twenty-five dollars for each offense; and if damages be committed by cattle in and said district, districts or county, the owner of such cattle shall be liable for all such damages, whether the place where the damage occurred be enclosed by a lawful fence or not, and the person damaged shall have a lien on the cattle committing the damage for the amount thereof and cost of suit; and it shall further more be the duty of any constable, sheriff or law marshal to impound any cattle found running at large in any district, districts or county, and the owner or bailee thereof shall pay to the officer impounding, for each head so impounded, one dollar and the cost of feeding and taking care of such cattle. Provided, the cost of impounding any number of cattle, at any one time, shall not exceed three dollars and the cost of feeding; and such officer shall have a lien on the cattle so impounded for his fees and expenses, which he may enforce in the manner herein provided, as follows: That the owner of such cattle be enforced."

PRESIDENT

ROOSEVELT'S

Message to Congress Will Be a Little "Radical."—Inheritance Tax Will Be Proposed.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 11.—President Roosevelt's message to Congress is virtually completed, and it is possible for The Herald to forecast the leading features. The most important recommendation will be that a system be devised for taxing great fortunes when they pass from generation to generation.

The President will urge that a tax be imposed upon inheritances beyond a certain amount, so that fortunes swollen beyond a healthy limit cannot be bequeathed by father to son in their entirety and permitted to grow indefinitely.

Second in importance is a recommendation that the Federal Government be empowered to exercise supervisory power over all corporations (besides railroads) engaged in interstate business. Whether this should be done through a Federal license or otherwise, the President will leave to Congress to determine. He believes such supervision will be the means of correcting the alarming increases in dividends, and also tend to protect the public against monopolistic extortion.

The President is in deep earnest in both these things, and his message will show it.

For the first time an executive message will deal with the divorce evil. The President's ideas on maintaining the purity of the home as the best means of preserving American institutions are well known, and he regards the alarming increases in divorce as a distinct menace. He therefore will urge Congress to legislate on this subject by paying the way for uniformity of divorce laws throughout the United States. This result may have to be reached first through the medium of a constitutional amendment, empowering Congress to pass such laws.

The President will renew his recommendation, made a year ago, for a law requiring publicity of contributions to political causes during campaign and Congressional campaigns, and another prohibiting corporations or their directors from giving money to committees or to candidates for Federal office.

A bill prohibiting corporation contributions was passed by the Senate last session, but was pigeon holed in the House because the Congressional campaign was about to begin.

The President will recommend legislation for the better protection of railroad passengers and employees. He will urge the extension of the block system and a rigid inspection of the physical conditions of railroads. He has been urged, also, to recommend a eight-hour law for railroad employees, while it cannot be stated definitely that he will do so, it is believed he will.

More stringent immigration law will be advised with a view of excluding certain classes of foreigners, especially those from Southern Italy and Sicily, Southern Europe and Russia.

Congress will be asked to give heed to the demand of the American Bankers' Association for currency reform and a more elastic monetary system recommended, so as to prevent money stringencies at seasons of the year when business is most brisk.

The President will not recommend revising of the tariff, although he has been asked to do so by some of the revisionists. Perhaps he will suggest a modification of the Dingley schedules a year hence, but that is to be determined later.

The foregoing reviews the principal recommendations which the message contains. There will be the usual chapters on the army and navy, the mercantile marine, the Philippines, Morocco and other matters, while the new conditions in Cuba and at Panama will be described.

Merriam's Announcement.

Mr. Jas. Rav Edell is a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Edelen, of near town, and Miss Lena Logsdon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Logsdon, of this place, will be married December 28, at the Dominie church at four o'clock in the afternoon. Both Mr. Edelen and Miss Logsdon are well and favorably known, and their many friends here and elsewhere extend congratulations in advance to the happy event.

Maniac Murders Nurse to Prevent Her from Leaving

Ghastly Crime of Life Prisoner in a New York Asylum—Victim Warned, But Takes No Heed—Slaying Is Carefully Planned.

Flahkill, N. Y.—Lizzie Halliday, a life prisoner at the state hospital for the insane, has added the fifth murder to her record by killing with awful cruelty and cunning a girl nurse who had won her friendship by unvarying kindness.

Her victim was Nurse Nellie Wickes, aged 24, who was about to leave the asylum to take up professional nursing. It was the fear of losing her friend that prompted the maniac to take her life.

A week ago the nurse told the woman the soon would leave her. The "murderess" was downcast. She regarded the nurse for a moment, and then, in a tone of cold deliberation, exclaimed:

"If you try to leave me I will kill you."

"Oh, no, I guess not," said Miss Wickes, laughing. "You wouldn't harm me."

From that moment the maniac planned the deed. She watched every movement of the nurse. Once she warned her not to leave. As the day passed a cruel gleam settled in her eyes.

Early the other morning Nurse Wickes approached and slipped her arm about the woman's waist.

"I'm going to leave you to-day," she said. "I want you to remember me, and not make any trouble."

"Mrs. Halliday turned away. Tears came to her eyes. Then she drew herself up to her full height, her lips moved convulsively, and she remarked in a low tone:

"You'd better not try it."

Miss Wickes left the corridor a few minutes later and went into a dressing room adjoining. The maniac followed her. In a moment she flung herself upon the nurse, pinned her to the floor, while she locked the door.

Miss Wickes, alone in the room with the murderess, made a desperate fight for her life. But she was no match for the maniac.

Throttling the nurse, Mrs. Halliday snatched a pair of scissors from Miss Wickes' belt. Screaming, she sank the sharp blades again and again into the nurse's face and throat.

More than 200 times the scissors points were plunged down before nurses and attendants succeeded in breaking down the door. On the floor lay Miss Wickes, gasping her last breath.

Mrs. Halliday stood at a window, calmly watching the death struggle. A maniacal smile of triumph lighted her face.

"She won't leave me now," she said, and laughed as she spoke.

Miss Wickes was hurried to a cot, but died within an hour without recovering consciousness. Mrs. Halliday laughed gleefully when told she was dead. Superintendent Lamb had Mrs. Halliday locked in a room and placed under special guard. She sat gazing with amused interest out of the window. She seemed to know precisely what she had done, but was indifferent.

When Coroner Goring asked her why she had committed the murder, she replied:

"She tried to leave me."

"Mrs. Halliday will not be placed in a cell. Superintendent Lamb says she will be carefully guarded, but there will be no punishment for her."

"We have always watched her closely," he said, "but of late she has seemed so cheerful that we never dreamed her murderous impulse would return. She was fond of Miss Wickes. They used to talk together for hours, and Mrs. Halliday would take much delight in telling the nurse of her life."

"She would never mention the murders she had committed, but would dwell upon her childhood days. Mrs. Halliday was regarded by us as a trusty. She is entirely rational upon every subject. The homicidal mania is her only trouble. She has on different occasions struck some of the nurses and patients, but these attacks have not been vicious."

Wife with Whip Gets Gems Given by Spouse to Rival

Holding Weapon Over Trembling Husband She Compels Him to Bring Back Her Diamonds Bestowed Upon Widow.

Los Angeles.—Holding a horse-whip over her cowering husband, Mrs. George A. Gill, wife of a rich Pasadena man, compelled her spouse to go back into the cottage of Mrs. Maurice Walker, a widow at Redondo, which he had just left, and get diamonds worth several hundred dollars and return them to her.

Armed with the whip and accompanied by a detective, Mrs. Gill paraded the street in front of the Walker cottage all night awaiting the appearance of her husband, whom she threw to be inside. At seven o'clock

Gill obediently entered the cottage and returned, bearing the pieces of jewelry, which he handed over to his wife. Then Mrs. Gill led her husband, pale and trembling, to the car and started for home.

Principals in the affair were reluctant to discuss the case. Mr. Gill even declared he had not been in Redondo, and that he did not know Mrs. Walker.

Mrs. Walker refused absolutely to talk.

"I have nothing whatever to say on the subject," she said.

The affair has created a tremendous sensation in Pasadena, Redondo and Los Angeles. Mrs. Walker is a widow of a former Los Angeles banker. She owns a beautiful summer home at the seashore city.

Mrs. Walker and Gill became acquainted when the former lived in Pasadena a few years ago.

Girl Sees Fifteen-Foot Snake.

Pelham, Minn.—Miss Lena Mathieson, the 20-year-old daughter of a farmer, was driving a yoke of oxen mowing hay, when the biggest snake ever seen in Minnesota appeared. The oxen belabored in terror and ran away, while the girl was thrown from the mower and severely injured. Miss Mathieson declares the snake was 15 feet long, and that its body at the largest place was as big as the Pelham smokestack. The young woman's veracity has never been doubted, and a large party of men has started in search of the reptile, intending to kill it and send the body to the Field museum, in Chicago.

Ferret Attacks Baby Girl.

Hartford, Conn.—Mrs. Gus Pickett, of this city, discovered a ferret sucking the blood from the body of her two-year-old daughter, whom she had placed on a bed on the floor. The infant was almost dead when found, and when the mother picked up her baby the animal still clung to its hold and refused to be killed before it could be made to let loose. The child may die.

By the Way. Every true lover recognizes the power of the press.

A man who marries an heiress can celebrate his golden wedding every year.

Graftings began when designing Eve crossed Adam's pathway with a red apple.

A man who has no money in the bank never has to worry over the absconding cashier.

There is only one loneliness man than a stranger in a big city—an Olerized patriarch at a summer resort.

A Milwaukee woman declares that snoring is no fun. Trying to get someone to contradict her, I suppose.

A man who lives in Chicago never has to go away for a change of climate. He gets three or four a day as it is.

The reason it is darkest just before the dawn is that a married man who stays out until that time has to think what will happen when he arrives home.

An optimist is a young lover who thinks it's going to be an easy to win from father as it was from the girl.

Blacksmith and Lawyer Had Been

JESSE PARTON IN LOUISVILLE HERALD.

Midway, Ky., Nov. 3.—"Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends." This passage of Scripture has been held to contain the supreme sacrifice that a man might make.

Here in Midway, Ky., a quaint little village in the Bluegrass country, there lives a man who transcended even the teachings of St. John, the evangelist.

He is Rufus K. Combs, a well-to-do retired blacksmith. He laid down his life for his bitterest enemy. That he was saved from the jaws of death after his enemy had been rescued in no whit detracts from the sacrifice. He gave himself—his life for it he knew—with out grudging, fully, freely and completely.

To-day he is the hero of his town, and the recipient of a silver medal and $1,500 from the Carnegie hero fund.

Richard Godson, attorney, who was saved from certain death, and his enemy, Rufus K. Combs, retired blacksmith, live two squares apart on Brunen street in Midway.

Just at twilight on the second day of last April a scream of anguish, heart-breaking in its agony, brought the people pouring from the houses in wild excitement.

The screams came from Mrs. Kate Poynter, the kind-hearted woman who had reared Richard Godson from a child, when he, too, was left an orphan with no roof but that provided by public charity to shelter him.

Coming out on the lawn to tell her adopted son supper was ready, she found him unconscious at the bottom of a pit containing a gas machine, his face buried in the mud.

In Midway many of the homes are furnished with these gas machines. In a pit about eight feet deep and possibly three or four feet across, a vessel filled with gasoline is kept, and this piped into the cellar of the house.

Godson had filled the tank, but the lights did not burn. He said afterward that he lifted the cover of the pit which was full of gas.

Rufus Combs, two blocks away, was playing croquet with his children, when he heard Mrs. Poynter's cries. He dropped his mallet and ran the 600 feet to his enemy's home. Down in the pit lay Godson, barely breathing, with an excited crowd around. There were friends of the unconscious man in that throng, but all shrank away from descending into the pit.

"Good God! Why don't you get him out!" his enemy (Combs) exclaimed, gazing around on them. "He's still breathing—it might be possible to save his life."

Men looked each other in the face fearfully. This one pleaded physical weakness. That one a wife and family that needed him. But no one looked to Combs—he was Godson's enemy; the whole town knew it. Then Combs had a delicate, nervous wife and five growing children, four of them boys, who needed his guidance.

"If nobody else will go, I'll have to," he said, and jumped down beside the man whose very existence had been an affront to him in the past.

There were cheers that quickly gave way to cries of horror. Combs lifted up Godson's body, but the fumes were strong and the rescuer stumbled and fell. He struggled up, face purple and eyes bulging from their sockets. With his great blacksmith strength he raised the unconscious man above his own tall head to within a foot or two of the pit's mouth, and then watchers seized the burden. Willing hands also drew Combs up just as he lost consciousness.

Long into the night physicians worked over the two men and finally brought them around.

Since that eventful day, when Combs ventured into the gas pit to save his enemy, both men have made heroic efforts to live down their enmity—but with small success.

"Danged if I like him any better than I did before," big, genial Rufus Combs says, sheepishly, "even if I did save his life."

"It was like this, we had some differences in politics about two years ago during a campaign. We always spoke when we met on the street, but anyone with half an eye could see there was little love lost between us."

"I want much! I just made some remarks in a meeting about something that affected Godson's property and mine and he called me a liar."

"We chafed over our differences of opinion considerable, and it kept getting worse instead of better. "Godson's all right. He's a game fighter and a square one, but I don't like him any better than I did before I saved his life."

"Why did I do it? Why, land's sake, somebody had to do it, and I didn't see anyone stirring—a man's a man, even if he is your enemy."

"I'd do as much for anyone."

"Did you realize that you were practically giving your life for Godson's sake when you went in the pit?"

Combs was asked.

"He twisted his long, jet black mustache thoughtfully for a minute, and then answered: "You bet I did! When my nose began to sting and the humming sound in my ears began to get louder I thought of Miss Ella and the children."

Mrs. Combs was a Miss Ella Nora Mullen, of Georgetown, and, although they have been married twenty-five years and have had in all seven children, she is still called "Miss Ella," according to the old Kentucky custom that prevailed in slavery days.

"I had $250 in my pants pocket, and I also thought of that," Combs added, with a twinkle in his eye. "I was wondering if the doctor or the undertaker would go through me first when I was being measured for a shroud."

Richard Godson has manfully and earnestly tried to bridge the gulf of dislike between himself and Combs since his return from the grave. The frequent allusions to their enmity anger him, and he makes light of the whole incident, except the bravery of Combs. None so readily or so warmly admits that as Godson.

"Indeed I am grateful to Combs for what he did for me," said Godson.

"He saved my life at the possible cost of his own."

"There were plenty in that crowd that might have rescued me—but they didn't do it. Don't think that I do not appreciate Combs heroism, for I do—there is nothing I would not do for him. He is impulsive, warm-hearted and generous. I really never considered him as an enemy; we just didn't like each other, that's all."

Both men are Democrats and are active in politics. Combs was a member of the Town Council for fourteen years. Last year he ran for Police Judge and lost by twenty votes; the year before he ran for Mayor and lost by five votes.

Since he was awarded the Carnegie medal for bravery October 17, delegations of his fellow citizens have urged him to run for Congress. But "Miss Ella" objects and that ends it.

Friends of the two men tell stories showing how bitter was the fight between Combs and Godson. One tale is of a political meeting in which Combs and Godson appeared with a whole battery of firearms and their followers were laden down with "shootin' irons." Each side spoke carefully that night and the word "liar" wasn't heard once.

At another political bonfire, when Combs and Godson were speaking for different candidates on the same platform, Godson made some statement about what would happen to Combs and his candidate after the election.

"Never mind, little Richard," Combs retorted, rising to stretch his long legs and arms. "I'm no bush rabbit to be scared by a little rustling in the grass!"

The $1,500 given with the Carnegie medal will go into the lively business (Combs intends to start next spring in order to give his boys employment during the summer vacation. In the list of awards made out by the Carnegie commission, Combs is mentioned as a cripple. Several years ago a heavy vehicle struck him in the back, permanently injuring one of his kidneys.

In Time of Peace.

In the first months of the Russo-Japan war had a striking example of the necessity for preparation and the early advantage of those who, so to speak, "have shingled their roofs in dry weather."

The virtue of preparation has made history and given to us our greatest men. The individual as well as the nation should be prepared for any emergency. Are you prepared to successfully combat the first cold you take? A cold can be cured much more quickly when treated as soon as it has been contracted and before it has become settled in the system. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is famous for its cures of colds and it should be kept at hand ready for instant use. For sale by every reliable dealer in the Blue Grass.

Mr. Isham's Bad Luck.

Harrisburg Democrat: Mr. James Isham, a well-known merchant at Mackville, had a valuable horse killed at the depot in this city last Friday afternoon. Mr. Isham had come to town for some goods which had been shipped to him here and had brought two wagons, a double and single team. The animal hitched to the one horse wagon became frightened at a train and ran frantically in the direction of the double team. A shaft of the wagon was driven into the side of one of the other horses, passing almost through its body. He died in a few moments and before anything could be done to relieve him.

Aged Couple to Wed.

Lebanon Enterprise: A marriage license was issued Friday by the county clerk to Mr. W. G. Broyles, of Boyle county, to marry Mrs. Rachel E. Lanford, of this county. The date of the wedding was not stated on the records made. The marriage is it stated on the license register, will take place at the home of the bride.

Mr. Broyles, who is a retired farmer, is 83 years of age while the bride is 66. It is his third venture of the kind and her second.

Took Morphine By Mistake.

Lebanon Enterprise: What is thought to have been a mistake came near costing the life of John Renner, the shoe-maker, who has for many years had his shop on Spalding avenue near Water street. Mr. Renner has been a sufferer with asthma and rheumatism for many months, and Sunday morning to alleviate the pain he took a quantity of morphine. About an hour afterwards he complained to his daughter that the drug was affecting him strangely, and asked that a physician be called.

Mr. Renner was walked from his home to his shop to prevent his falling asleep, and when Dr. Kobert arrived he worked with the man until he was relieved of the poison. Upon investigation it was found he had taken thirteen one-quarter grains, and had it not been for the prompt arrival of the physician the over-dose would more than probably have resulted fatally.

Wounds, Bruises and Burns.

By applying an antiseptic dressing to wounds, bruises, burns and like injuries before inflammation sets in, they may be healed without maturation and in about one-third the time required by the old treatment. This is the greatest discovery and triumph of modern surgery. Chamberlain's Pain Balm acts on this same principle. It is an antiseptic and when applied to such injuries causes them to heal very quickly. It also allays the pain and soreness and prevents any danger of blood poisoning. Keep a bottle of Pain Balm in your home and it will save you time and money, not to mention the inconvenience and suffering such injuries entail. For sale by every reliable dealer in the Blue Grass.

John B. Chensault, for Clerk of the Court of Appeals, no opposition.

The man who has learned to "love his neighbor as himself" is indeed a genius, and he ought to be able to solve the problem of perpetual motion.

JIM RICHARDSON.

Last Wednesday morning when we heard that Hon. J. M. Richardson, the Democratic candidate for Congress in the Third district, had been defeated, we "caught" the blues, there and then, and the "spell" continued throughout the day. Personally we are not acquainted with Mr. Richardson, but "way back yonder"—fifteen years ago—when we were the printer's devil on The LaRue County Herald we read his editorial column each week in The Glasgow Times, and were convinced, beyond a question of a doubt, that he was next to the greatest editor in the United States—Charles Churchill Howard, of The LaRue Herald, being a "leetle the rise" o' Richardson. Ever since those good days up to the present hour we have stored away happy impressions of Jim Richardson; therefore, we received the news of his defeat with much regret. Mr. Richardson is a clean man, an honest, honorable man and a brainy. His defeat doesn't mean his elimination from politics—not by a jugful o' liquid ginger, or a pan o' lightning dust. He's too true-blue for that—tall timber and good—one of the best in the forest of oaks; not knotty, sappy nor soft, but the kind whose great, strong limbs make rudders for the safe-sailing ships.

You are honest and brilliant, Jim Richardson, and your heart is full of love for your fellowman. You are needed in a place of trust; you will be called upon again. Grease your spinnels and get ready for another run.

Since last Tuesday dead woodcocks are plentiful; live ones "is very scarce" indeed. We are killing these very lovable birds too rapidly, and we are afraid there won't be any left to drop dead when Paul Barth puts the lid on in Louisville.

J. C. W. BECKHAM.

We have received the following unsigned letter:

Louville, Ky., Nov. 10.—Rogers Gore, Esq., Ed. Sun, Springfield, Ky.: Dear Sir:—Beckham is a buzz-saw with big teeth, don't you think? He is a runner! Washington county looks lonesome in that Fourth district column of figures. Very truly,

Yes sir-ee, Beckham's a buzz-saw with an extra buzz hooked on. He saws in all directions and sees far ahead, and the breezes from his buzzes whistle through the whiskers of the opposition like thunder through the air. Bet your buttons he's a runner—as rapid as a stream of water over a soap-stone track on a mountain-side; he's quicker'n lightning; slicker'n grease, and smoother than the "polished manners" of a genuine Frenchman. If he ever gets after you, throw up the sponge quick, and wave a truce. You can't dodge him or duck under, and he'll make the fur fly if you don't get into a hole, pull the hole in after you and crawl under the bed. Of course, in this case—the case of last Tuesday—the fur didn't fly, because McCreary has no fur, but just suppose Beckham had been after a furry creature! laws, how the air would have taken on hair. Beckham a runner! Well, you bet! He was flying the last time we heard of him—flying, ripping things up the back and buzz-sawing to beat the band. Our advice to all politicians is: "Get away from the buzzer."

John Crepps 'Wickliffe Beckham, why in the thunderation don't you run for President of the United States?

Man, it is said, is the greatest of God's creatures. We shall not dispute it, but when John Jones loses a heifer calf he is more visably affected than when he is informed that his neighbor, Bill Jones is dead.

S. W. HAGER.

Somebody oughter head Hager off; he's still a-running—jumpin' all the fences and flying across the bottoms; 40,000 majority at the present writin', and the end ain't yet in sight. A landside! that's the word! Sure! Accompanied by a cyclone, a hurricane, an earthquake and a hot-air whirlwind. And everything that didn't slide away or blow down was scorched. But, praise goodness and sing a song, shindig and holler hallelujah, the storm is over the sky is clear, and there ain't even a speck of Haze on the far-off hills. Persimmons are ripe, 'posums plentiful, the popcorn is gathered, the backlogs cut, and what do we care if we have got Hager and a long winter ahead of us? The roses will soon bloom again, Hager will stump the State for the "Democrat" party and, hardly before you know it, we'll all be wearing bouquets and throwing our hats up in the air. We are a great people.

Milwaukee ministers have inaugurated a crusade against "a garter-like contrivance" that the women folk are wearing just above the elbow to hold up the long gloves now being worn. Admitting, for the sake of argument, that a garter "just above the elbow" is out of place, we fail to see what business it is of these preachers.

Another gold mine has been discovered in Kentucky.

Hon. Jim Richardson, defeated Democratic candidate for Congress in the Third district, goes behind the clouds and kicks up sun-dust. In a happy manner he declares that his defeat will give him a chance to go home and get acquainted with his family.

Gen. Percy Haley is a pretty good-sized man, too.

President Roosevelt has again announced that he will not accept the Republican nomination for President. Mr. Roosevelt has made this announcement once a week for the past year, but it seems that some of the party leaders won't take his word for it. We suggest that the President, the next time he makes the announcement, show 'em "Teddy's teeth." Then they will leave him alone.

The biggest thing in Kentucky is Hon. Ben Johnson's majority in the Fourth district.

This is from the Kentucky State Journal:

"If John W. Langley is elected to Congress in the Fourth district, which seems assured," etc.

Surely, Mr. Walton—surely you are under the influence of something. Hon. Ben Johnson, Democrat, is elected in the Fourth district by a majority of over 5,000.

Crow is being "et," fried, boiled and stewed.

Gov. J. C. W. Beckham, you are a wheelhorse.

Hager! head him!

The primary, contrary to the expectations and predictions of quite a number of the Democratic politicians, did not bring out a large vote. But it kept a large number in each county at home.

Elizabethtown News: The bird season, which begins next Thursday, promises to be a veritable paradise for hunters in Hardin county. It is the unanimous opinion of those who have looked into the matter that the county is full of partridges. On many farms there are from four to six covies. It is hard to go any distance on any roads without seeing a covey. Last winter was an exceedingly mild one and less snow than usual so the birds went through the season better than usual. The hatching season was perfect and the new game law has helped to protect the feathered tribe. Every man who owns a gun and a dog is looking forward to next Thursday and the hunter will have a veritable picnic.

Master Guy Kroker, son of Mr. W. M. Kroker, met with quite a painful accident last Friday afternoon. He was emptying a tank of gasoline in the back yard of the Red Cross Drug Store and unthoughtfully struck a match near the tank. A slight explosion occurred, burning the boy's face severely. It is a miracle that he escaped death.

One of the most exciting events of the season was pulled off at the Walton pool room, on last Thursday evening, when a match game of pool was played by two teams, selected from the best pool players of Springfield and Lebanon. The games were close from start to finish, and the result was in doubt until the last game was played, when the local team won the series by only four points. The line up was as follows: Messrs. McCabe, Bosley, Buckman and Moss for Springfield, and Messrs. Edmonson, Bunnell, Vowels and Thompson for Lebanon. The main features of the series were the perfect playing of Mr. Bosley and the close score. The home team goes over to Lebanon tomorrow night, where another close contest is expected.

Sells More of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy than of All Others Put Together.

The following letter from a locality where Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is well known shows by the unprecedented demand for it that the medicine sells on its own merits. Mr. Thos. George, a merchant at Mt. Elgin, Ontario, says: "I have had the local agency for Chamberlain's Cough Remedy ever since it was introduced into Canada, and I sell as much of it as I do of all other lines I have on my shelves put together. Of the many dozens sold under guarantee, I have not had one bottle returned. I can personally recommend this medicine as I have used it myself and given it to my children and always with the best results. For sale by every reliable dealer in the Blue Grass."

Card of Thanks.

Georgetown, Ky., Nov. 8.—Editor Springfield Sun.—Dear Sir:—Your humble scribe would beg a short space in your most excellent paper for the purpose of expressing to the good brethren and sisters of Beech Grove Baptist church our sincere thanks for a well-filled box of provisions, which was received with thanks, not only because of its value in dollars and cents, but most of all our heart throbs with joy and gladness when in thought our minds turn back to the loving hearts and hands of those who sent this token of their love and esteem.

May the richest blessings of a kind Heavenly Father rest upon each one who has, by another token of love, placed us under renewed obligations not only to them, but to the God whom we serve.
Our best wishes and prayers are for the noble pastor, Rev. H. P. Beach, and his grand people at Beech Grove.

NOTES FROM MEADOWBROOK FARM

By William Pitt

The opinion of a man who has had 23 years' experience in strawberry growing ought to be worth considering. He says that after trying almost every method now practiced by different growers, he is convinced that the best method is to plant a new bed every year, and explains his plan as follows: "After the first bearing year, as soon as we are through picking I begin to take care of the beds by pulling all weeds and grass, before they make any seed. Let these lie on the bed in spots where there are no plants. As soon as the ground is frozen I cover the entire bed with horse manure to a depth of two or three inches. This will, perhaps, smother some of the plants, but there will be plenty of them left for the next year's fruiting, and those that come through in the spring will grow with as much vigor as a newly-set plant. From a bed of one-acre treated as above described I picked more berries the past season than from an acre planted one year ago. The berries, however, were not quite as large. After I finish picking a second crop, I plow everything under in July and plant to celery. The land will then be in a high state of fertility, for the strawberry takes but little from the soil. If a second crop is not wanted the ground should be sown with crimson clover about the first of August. This should be plowed under the following spring, when the ground will be in excellent condition for planting early potatoes, beets, cabbage or in fact, any early vegetables. This method of growing strawberries gives me three beds to look after, two bearing beds, one and two years old, and a newly-planted one every spring, and I am of the opinion that there is less labor and expense in planting a bed every year than in trying to build up the old one year after year."

"Is the farm horse doomed to disappear from the working force of the farm? David Beecroft thinks so, for in an article in Technical World Magazine he says: "No longer will the plowman, homeward plod his weary way" instead he will simply turn on the second speed of his agricultural motor car and go dashing up the lane to the farm house at the rate of 20 miles an hour. In the early months of 1902 what proved to be the first successful gasoline agricultural motor appeared, contesting at nearly all of the great agricultural competitions of the season in England, and carrying off the gold medals from the horse in every contest. Plowing proved to be the first phase of farm labor to which the agricultural motor was introduced, and at which, four years ago, it made its initial reputation. Steam engines had proven too heavy for the soft land being plowed, and here the agricultural motor expected to mire the internal combustion motor, but he signally failed. For a plowing test among horses, steam power and the gasoline motor, two and three-quarter tons of very heavy clay soil were selected. It was a condition that the furrows were to be six inches wide and six inches deep. In doing the work the gasoline motor, three to a plow, with three drivers and three boys, did the work at a total cost of $12.25, or at the rate of $3.65 per acre. The gasoline motor, the total cost of plowing the same area amounted to a total of $9.08, or at $4.08 per acre, and with the gasoline motor the cost totaled $14.64, or at $1.97 per acre. For plowing purposes a three-furrowed plow is invariably used except in heavy clay soils, where a couple of furrows prove sufficient."

The New York Times is authority for the story that a dweller contiguous to the Long Island mosquito marshes has discovered a way to catch mosquitoes in large quantities by the device of putting up a wire netting with a large opening at one end and an electric light at the other. The mosquitoes with numberless other fly-by-night insects are allured into this dazzling inclosure, and in the morning are pulled up in such large heaps that they may be handled with scoop shovels, and thus become an article of food, nourishing and stimulating, to the Long Island chicken in a degree up to this time altogether unsuspected.

A Dayless Road association is trying in England to abate the very great nuisance of dusty highways, both by improved methods of road construction and by a safer use of those roads by the traffic passing over them. Here is a suggestion for our good roads movement in this country. Let construction work in as far as possible provide the dustless road. Oil and tar are being used successfully in various parts of the country to this end.

Don't feed large quantities of cracked corn to horses, or continue the practice for any length of time, as it wears on the inner coating of the stomach.

FARM LANDS and FARMS

Are Increasing in Value. If You Want to Buy Now is The Time

IF YOU WANT TO
FARM PUT IT IN MY HANDS.

I believe—indeed I am sure—I can save you money if you desire to buy a farm in this or adjoining counties. I have a great many farms for sale—good ones—at reasonable prices, and I am anxious to show you any one of them. Remember, that land is constantly increasing in value, and there is hardly a remote possibility that it will decrease. Indeed, the man who buys a farm today may feel absolutely certain that its value will increase a third—possibly half, or more, within a half a dozen years. I honestly believe that you can be suited in place and price, if you will call upon me. I have farms in every section of the county—large and small, and all of them are well improved. I also have some bargains in town property.

Seasonable Entertainments and Suggestions for Social Functions

By EDITH A. BROWN
Society Editor of the Chicago Record-Herald.

A Thomas Bailey Aldrich Luncheon—"Fortunate Treaty" Table for Honored Guests—Quotations That Suggest Decorations—Twelfth Wedding Anniversary Celebration—Chinese Menu Served Under Mammoth Parasol.

The second of the club luncheons in the American Post series could be given in honor of Thomas Bailey Aldrich, who was born on November 11, 1836. His birthplace was Portsmouth, N. H., the town which will pass down into history as the scene of the signing of the treaty of peace between Russia and Japan. A clever idea for the chief table at the luncheon—where the officers and guests of honor are seated—could be worked out in decorating in the Russian and Japanese flags and colors, giving a bit of modern historical interest to the affair. Mr. Aldrich's lyrical lines are easily adapted to the use of menu description and table decoration. For the tables carry out much the same idea of decoration as that suggested last week for the William Cullen Bryant luncheon, with this exception: Instead of the use of the ribbons bearing the table quotation decorate in the flowers or foliage suggested by the quotation and use the lines on the second page of the folder, opposite the menu. This can be done very readily if the number to be seated at each table is determined early, that the writer of the menu may make the necessary divisions of the quotations. From the prelude to the "Cloth of Gold" may be called the line:

"A tissue out of autumn leaves," and if autumn leaves are still to be found this line suggests a good table trimming. From the same poem—"Here a thistle, there a rose"—and the combination should be very attractive.

If the florist is unable to produce apple blossoms in November, go to the milliner. In her stock of trimmings may be found the blossoms very true to life these days, and even if artificial, they can be woven into a very pretty table decoration. For this table "Envoles to Cloth of Gold" gives this line:

"Hailing the apple blossom." For another combination, "When the Sultan Goes to Isaphan" gives—"Anemones, myrtles and violets"—which the florists of the cities, at least, will be able to supply.

But most appropriate of all the tables for a fall entertainment is the line—"The pine cones ripens and the long moss wags"—which is to be found in the poem "The Potomac." The pine cone and moss forms one of the most beautiful decorations for luncheons or dinners which may be found, and it is of double value because so seldom used.

For the menu of the "mystery" luncheon from the poem "Egypt"—"Tis neither midnight, twilight or moonlight"—will serve well for clear soup and as the beginning. Then in the order of service may follow:

For an oyster course—"Dipping the jewels out of the sea," from "Before the Rain." For fish and its accompaniments—"Costliest fish" and "All that the Sultan palate could wish," when the Sultan Goes to Isaphan.

The same poem furnishes the line for the meat course—"Of spiced meats." With this course will come the bread, to be described by—"amber grain" Shunk in the wind—"Before the Rain. From this last poem likewise comes the suggestion for the glass of water—"Scooping the dew that lay in the flowers."

The salad course returns to "Cloth of Gold" for its description—"How strange and shadowy it all seems."

Then comes a series of lines from "When the Sultan Goes to Isaphan" to "order his feast" which will serve the dairy courses. For mixed ices or ice cream:

"Glittering squares of colored ice." For the cakes, which will be a part of this course—

"Sweetened with syrups, tinctured with spice. And for the bon-bons—"Creams and cordials and sugared dates."

Coffee, which comes with the bon-bons, borrows this line from "Egypt"—"Fantastic sleep is busy with my eyes."

And the luncheon ends with fruit—"And the grapes reach up to the sunshades," from "Little Maid."

China Wedding.

The china wedding anniversary, which comes with the twelfth year of married life, carries with it but little chance for decoration, since china as a decoration is not particularly adaptable.

TWO WIVES SET THE QUARREL BY FIGHT

HUSBANDS SECOND HOT "SCRAP" OF HOOSIER WOMEN.

KNOCKOUT BLOW LANDED

Mrs. Cora McKenna Gets Stiff "Wallop" on the Jaw, and the Battle Develops into a Rough and Tumble Affair.

Brazil, Ind.—Mrs. Sallie Forrester and Mrs. Cora McKenna fought a fight to a finish in this city the other evening. Mrs. McKenna was knocked out and is not yet able to appear in court against the victor. The husbands of the two women stood by during the fight and acted as seconds for their wives, and also offered suggestions as to the best place to land the knockout blow.

The fight was the result of bad blood which had existed between the two women for some time. They had frequent quarrels, and had appeared in police court on charges of provocation and assault and battery regularly for several months. The trouble became so aggravated that the husbands decided to have their wives fight a battle to a finish. The women, eager for each other's blood, agreed, and it was arranged that they should engage in a straight stand-up knockdown fight according to the Marquis of Queensbury rules.

The two women, dressed for the bout and accompanied by their husbands, met on neutral ground in a field near their homes, and the fight was pulled off. For a few rounds the women fought according to the regulation prize ring rules, but when one put a stiff right to the jaw the recipient got mad, and the battle soon developed into a rough-and-tumble affair.

It is not known how many rounds were fought, but the fight progressed for some time, and the husbands did not interfere until the knockout blow was put over.

When Mrs. Forrester struck the blow that put Mrs. McKenna down and out, and Thomas McKenna saw his wife lying on the grass, he pitched in and gave Mrs. Forrester a bloody eye.

The parties finally arrived at their homes. Mrs. McKenna being carried to the house. McKenna at once went before Prosecutor Scofield and caused the arrest of Mrs. Forrester on the charge of assault and battery on his wife. Forrester retaliated by filing charges against McKenna and his wife for assault and battery on Mrs. Forrester.

Charges of participating in a prize fight have also been preferred against George Forrester and Thomas McKenna and their wives. As Mrs. McKenna has not yet recovered from the knockout blow, the cases have been postponed until the parties are able to appear in court.

MORE DOCTORS

And Nurses Needed at the Lexington Asylum, Says the Grand Jury.

Lexington, Ky.—The Fayette county grand jury reported to Judge Parker and was discharged. The body sent fully into the alleged mismanagement of the Eastern Kentucky asylum and recommended several important changes in the institution. The jury said it believed the physicians now in charge of the asylum were entirely incapable of properly administering the affairs of the institution, and recommended that the number be increased. The report also said the number of attendants and nurses at the institution should be increased and the pay materially increased. The body recommended that a training school for nurses be established, and that the legislature be asked to appropriate sufficient money to build such a school.

The investigation was due to the scandal growing out of the recent death of Fred Ketterer, a patient at the asylum, who, it was alleged, was brutally murdered by the attendants.

CHARM OF $250

Could Save the Girl, Advised the Professor, Who Then Vanished.

Owensboro, Ky.—Many Owensboro girls are regretting the departure of "Prof." C. Renz, who declared he was the most wonderful mind reader in the world. One of these is Miss Daisy Hall, a pretty 18-year-old girl. On her first visit to the "professor" she told her, she said, that some dreadful tragedy was hanging over her, but that he could prevent it if given money to be used as a magnet. She gave him $150. This, in the opinion of Renz, was not a sufficient magnet, and she obtained $100 more. This $250 Renz placed in a small envelope and the latter in a larger one. He then gave her the envelope and told her to wear it in her bosom until she returned to his rooms the following Wednesday. When she returned she found the "professor" was gone. The envelope she wore contained newspaper clippings.

HINDMAN'S REINSTATEMENT

Will be Insisted on by Insurance Commissioner of Kentucky.

Louisville, Ky.—State Commissioner of Insurance Prewelt has not yet completed his decision in the investigation into the dismissal of Col. Briscoe Hindman, general agent for Kentucky of the Mutual Life Insurance Co., of New York, although he has furnished President Prewelt with a synopsis of what will probably be his ruling. This tentative outline provided for reinstatement of the dismissed general agent upon penalty of revocation of the Kentucky license. If this ruling of the commissioner should be final the Mutual has indicated that it will resist revocation of its license in the state courts.

BREWERS PROTEST

Against County Unit Law of Kentucky—Also Condemn Low Dives.

Lexington, Ky.—Asserting that the Cammack county unit bill passed at the last regular session of the legislature is unfair legislation the Kentucky brewers' association, which convened here, has entered a vigorous protest against it. The protest is made on the ground that the law assumes that beers are as dangerous as the strongest alcoholic liquors, yet the brewers assert that they are health foods. The law is the result of "fanatical prejudice," says the resolution, and local option will utterly fail to reduce intemperance. The association also adopted a strong resolution condemning low dives and disorderly saloons.

Croup.

A reliable medicine and one that should always be kept in the home for immediate use is Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It will prevent the attack if given as soon as the child becomes hoarse, or even after the croupy cough appears. There is no danger in giving it to children for it contains no opium or other harmful drug. For sale by every reliable dealer in the Blue Grass.

STATE ITEMS OF INTEREST

Lexington, Ky.—A desperate battle is reported to have occurred in the mountains of Magoffin county, in which one man was killed and several others severely wounded. The dead man is Jack Pink, who was shot through the heart by Nero Howard. One of the wounded men is Charles Howard, shot by George Wirman. Wirman is Jack Pink's father-in-law. Howard was badly wounded in the hip. Nero Howard was shot and badly wounded by an unknown man. The fight occurred at a voting place on the Upper Licking river in Magoffin county and several fist fights occurred. Finally some one drew and fired a pistol and the battle was on. Jack Pink was killed early in the action. A minute later Charles Howard fell wounded in the hip by George Wirman. Then Nero Howard, who had killed Pink, was shot by a man who escaped under cover of the darkness before being recognized. All the parties escaped into the mountains. No arrests have been made.

All the men have had trouble before and had been prominently identified with mountain feud troubles. The two families head large factions, and more trouble is feared when members of the families meet.

TRAPPIST MONK

Returns to Gethsemane After Traveling Through Dark Continent.

Louisville, Ky.—Right Rev. Edmund M. Obrecht, head of the Trappist monks and priests in the United States, arrived in Louisville from Europe and hastened to his monastery at Gethsemane, Nelson county, Ky. But Rev. Obrecht has traveled 15,000 miles since he left his monastery last December. He was commissioned by his superiors in France to go to South Africa to make an inspection of the monasteries conducted by the Trappists among the semi-civilized tribes in that country. The abbot is a personal friend of the pope, and had several audiences with him during his stay in Rome. The abbot was received in Louisville by several of the Catholic clergy and was the guest of M. Herrmann, the local French Consul.

RELEASES PASTOR.

The Rev. E. B. Kuntz Will Take Up Evangelistic Work.

Bowling Green, Ky.—A called session of the Logan Presbytery, of the Presbyterian church, U. S. A., was held in this city. The object of the meeting was to dissolve the pastoral relations existing between Rev. E. B. Kuntz and his former church. Mr. Kuntz was pastor of the Eleventh Street Presbyterian church. He will devote his time to evangelistic work in the future. He will be succeeded at this place by Dr. J. D. Hunter, of Franklin.

Corset Stay Saves Girl's Life.

Richmond, Ky.—Miss May Little, one of Richmond's prettiest young women, was also seriously wounded while arriving with Mrs. John R. Gibson. A crack of a pistol was heard as the girls were entering the arms of Mrs. Gibson, exclaiming: "I am shot!" Mrs. Gibson drove rapidly to the Glyn don hotel, where Miss Little, with her mother, lives. A physician found that Miss Little was wounded in the left side just under the heart. The wound is not necessarily fatal. Had it not been for a corset stay, which wound the course of the ball, Miss Little would have been fatally wounded.

Forest Fires in Kentucky.

Mayking, Ky.—Disastrous forest fires are burning in several eastern Kentucky mountain counties, destroying thousands of dollars' worth of valuable young timber. Outhouses, palings, fences and other articles are going up in the flames. If the drought continues the fire will reach many settlements.

May Test Bond Issue.

Newport, Ky.—The question as to the right of the city to issue sewer bonds may be tested in the courts. Ex-Auditor Silva contends that the city has no legal right to issue twenty-year payment bonds unless they date from 1890, when the enabling act was passed.

Sale of Coal Mine.

Williamsburg, Ky.—The Mt. Morgan Coal Co. mines and properties have been sold to W. T. Underwood and associates of Birmingham, Ala., for something over $100,000. Mr. Underwood says he will improve the condition and increase the output of coal very materially in a short while.

Bystander Killed.

Grayson, Ky.—John Tackett, of Wilard, was lodged in jail here charged with the killing of John Rinehart, a saloonkeeper, with a shotgun. Tackett was quarreling with another man, and claims his gun was accidentally discharged, the load hitting John Rinehart, a bystander.

Lid On Again.

Louisville, Ky.—The city administration is determined to close all saloons in this city at 1 o'clock in the morning. Saloonkeepers were notified by patrolmen that the instructions would be rigidly enforced.

FROM THE CHINESE.

Win your lawsuit and lose your money.

Deceive, but don't insult, a mandarin.

No punishment on the bench, no law below it.

Quickly pay your taxes, even if they should empty your purse; then you will be happy.

Let householders avoid litigation, for once go to law and there is nothing but trouble.

Of ten reasons by which a magistrate may decide a case, nine are unknown to the public.

If but one word of information against a man gets into court, nine bullocks cannot drag it out again.

The Chinese, whose wealth of proverbs is well known, have many dealings with the law. Here are some examples:

Their mandarin, who take the place of the magistrates in this country, come in for a fair share of his hitting, as witness the following:

PROVERBS AND PHRASES.

No legacy so rich as honesty.—Shakespeare.

Patience is the door of joy.—From the German.

The comforter's head never aches.—From the Italian.

Contrivance is better than force.—From the French.

Striking manners are bad manners.—Rev. Robert Hall.

Clean hands are better than full ones in the sight of God.—Byron.

Happy the land which has nothing of history.—From the French.

Fate leads the willing, but drives the stubborn.—From the German.

"I was taken with epileptic fits; had been so long that I had to be taken to a hospital. I had sent for our family physician but he could do very little for me, and my fits grew every day, and at last I had had a bad seizure, and I was so weak and nervous that I could do nothing. My father heard of Dr. Miles' medicines and bought a bottle of Dr. Miles' Nervine, and I took it and Liver Pills. I had taken only a few doses until I began to feel better. I took a few more and I was cured. I am sound and well. It has been worth the whole world to me. I recommend it to all who are afflicted with nervous troubles. A life-long testimonial to the merit of your medicine, for I am enjoying the best of health, and feel that my life and health is due to the use of your medicine." LEVY WILLIAMS, R. F. D. No. 2, Boston, Gt. Br.

Dr. Miles' Nervine is sold by your druggist, who is guaranteed to refund your money if it fails, or will refund your money.
